Our journal, Workers' International Newsletter (WIN) is committed to the principles of revolutionary communism -- to the proposition that the working people of all nations must unite and by means of revolutionary struggle destroy the old imperialist-capitalist world and establish our own class rule in order to build a new socialist-communist society.

WIN is open to all revolutionaries who are fed up with the sell-out policies of the old communist movement and the fake Trade Union leaders who collude with the bosses to perpetuate their rotten system of exploitation and oppression.

WIN recognizes that ideological unity will only be achieved through open and protracted struggle. Therefore our pages are open to friends and representatives of revolutionary organizations throughout the world who recognize the necessity of building a new workers' international and who are willing to frankly exchange views and debate differences.

We also hope that WIN can grow as a revolutionary and coordinating information center on important class battles that are developing internationally.

The initiative for WIN was made at the International Workshop of the Progressive Labor Party's third national convention, July 1973 in New York City, at which representatives of more than 20 countries resolved to build a new WORKERS' INTERNATIONAL.
